- Some behaviour on court has been petulant and time-wasting. I think we need as players to adopt a zero tolerance approach to this and stamp out the language, racquet throwing and hitting the ball away. We have an excellent Interclub competition generally played in excellent spirit - lets preserve that.
- From a player perspective from a small club, integration of clubs to form teams to be of a competitive ability needs to be encouraged. Most of the senior women are happy to play without allegiance to a particular club it seems. Perhaps there is room for this type of competition to grow?
- No additional fees over and above every clubs annual formula
- I think they do an awesome job
- Women's B grade singles and intermediate doubles seemed to encompass too wide a variety from near beginners through to experienced players
- I really enjoyed the season-thanks
- Ladies Social was too social and not enough teams to make it work effectively. Probably ready to move up to intermediate doubles but would like this to be a four person team.
- Intermediate ladies was a real success. Social doubles might work better as a 2 player format.
- Enjoyed the format of the ladies A grade this year with mixed teams for the second half of the season. Less competitive and more social which I liked. I think most people were happy with that as we are so used to playing each other in a competitive setting. It was also nice to play against different people for a change. I played #1 against a #3 from another club. It was enjoyable for both, but more for the #3 who wouldn't usually get a challenge like that. It would be good to try and get everyone playing at one club each week. I'd imagine that is a logistical nightmare though!
